Obama apologizes to Doctors Without Borders after deadly Afghanistan airstrike

(CNN) President Barack Obama called and apologized to the head of Doctors Without Borders, whose staff and patients were killed and injured during a bombing Saturday in Kunduz Afghanistan, the White House said Wednesday. The U.S. has characterized its airstrike Saturday, which killed 12 members of the Doctors Without Borders staff as well as 10 patients, as a mistake. Obama pledged full cooperation with the joint investigations being conducted with NATO and the Afghan government in the morning conversation with Doctor's Without Borders International President Joanne Liu. "The President assured Dr. Liu that the Department of Defense investigation currently under way would provide a transparent, thorough and objective accounting of the facts and circumstances of the incident and, if necessary, the President would implement changes that would make tragedies like this one less likely to occur in the future," White House Press Secretary Josh Earnest told reporters. Later Wednesday, Liu put out a statement saying that despite Obama's apology, "we reiterate our ask that the U.S. government consent to an independent investigation led by the International Humanitarian Fact-Finding Commission to establish what happened in Kunduz, how it happened, and why it happened." The U.S. military has said that Saturday's airstrike came at the request of Afghan allies who asked for assistance after coming under fire.

International News – Significant Events

FBI helped thwart nuclear smuggling plot in Moldova

(CNN) The FBI helped Moldovan authorities three times in the last five years to thwart potential smuggling of nuclear and radioactive material, a Moldovan interior minister said Wednesday. The cases in the former Soviet republic involved sting operations, and no one from jihadi groups was involved, a U.S. law enforcement official familiar with the investigations said. But officials were concerned that smugglers would try to sell to extremist groups such as ISIS, the U.S. source said, and the cases offer a glimpse at efforts to keep such materials -- which in some cases could be used for weapons -- from being sold on the black market.

Russia launches naval bombardment of targets in Syria

(CNN) Russia launched a naval bombardment Wednesday of ISIS targets in Syria, a senior Russian official said, ramping up a newly muscular presence in the Middle East. Four Russian ships fired 26 missiles into Syria, hitting 11 targets, Russian Defense Minister Sergei Shoigu told President Putin during a televised meeting. Shoigu said the strikes were launched from the Caspian Sea using precise long-range missiles that flew 1,500 kilometers (930 miles) to their targets.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Weather of Concern

- The combination of strengthening high pressure near California and offshore wind flow will bring above normal temperatures Friday through Sunday. Temperatures will peak on Friday 10 to 20 degrees above normal, with very slight cooling Saturday through Sunday for portions of Southern California.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/wwa_bc_cal.php

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Dry and seasonable weather conditions will prevail across northwest California through Friday as high pressure aloft remains over the region. A weak trough will brush far northwest California with the possibility for a few showers on Saturday.

Medford Weather:

A long wave ridge will build along the west coast into Thursday then slide slowly east. This will push the storm track back north. Expect dry conditions into Thursday night with inland highs 10 to 15 degrees above normal over the west side and 15 to 20 degrees above normal east of the cascades and over Northern California.

Reno Weather:

High pressure over northeast California and western Nevada will lead to warm and dry conditions into the weekend. Afternoon highs may approach record levels Friday and Saturday, with increasing breezes for the weekend as the ridge begins to weaken. The weakening ridge will bring slightly cooler, but still above average, temperatures early next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Dry weather conditions along with a warming trend will persist through late in the week as high pressure builds over the state. Temperatures will hold steady through the weekend as the ridge flattens and zonal flow develops aloft.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

High pressure ridge over west coast will keep slow warming trend going through end of week with well above normal temperatures. Cooler temperatures over the weekend and early next week can be expected, but will still be above normal.

Hanford Weather:

An upper level ridge of high pressure will continue to build over central California during the next few days and bring dry weather with a day to day warming trend through Saturday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure and weak offshore winds will bring above normal temperatures through the weekend with the heat peaking on Friday. A slight cooling trend will begin early next week as the high weakens. A low may approach from the southwest on Tuesday bringing the chance of rain to the area.

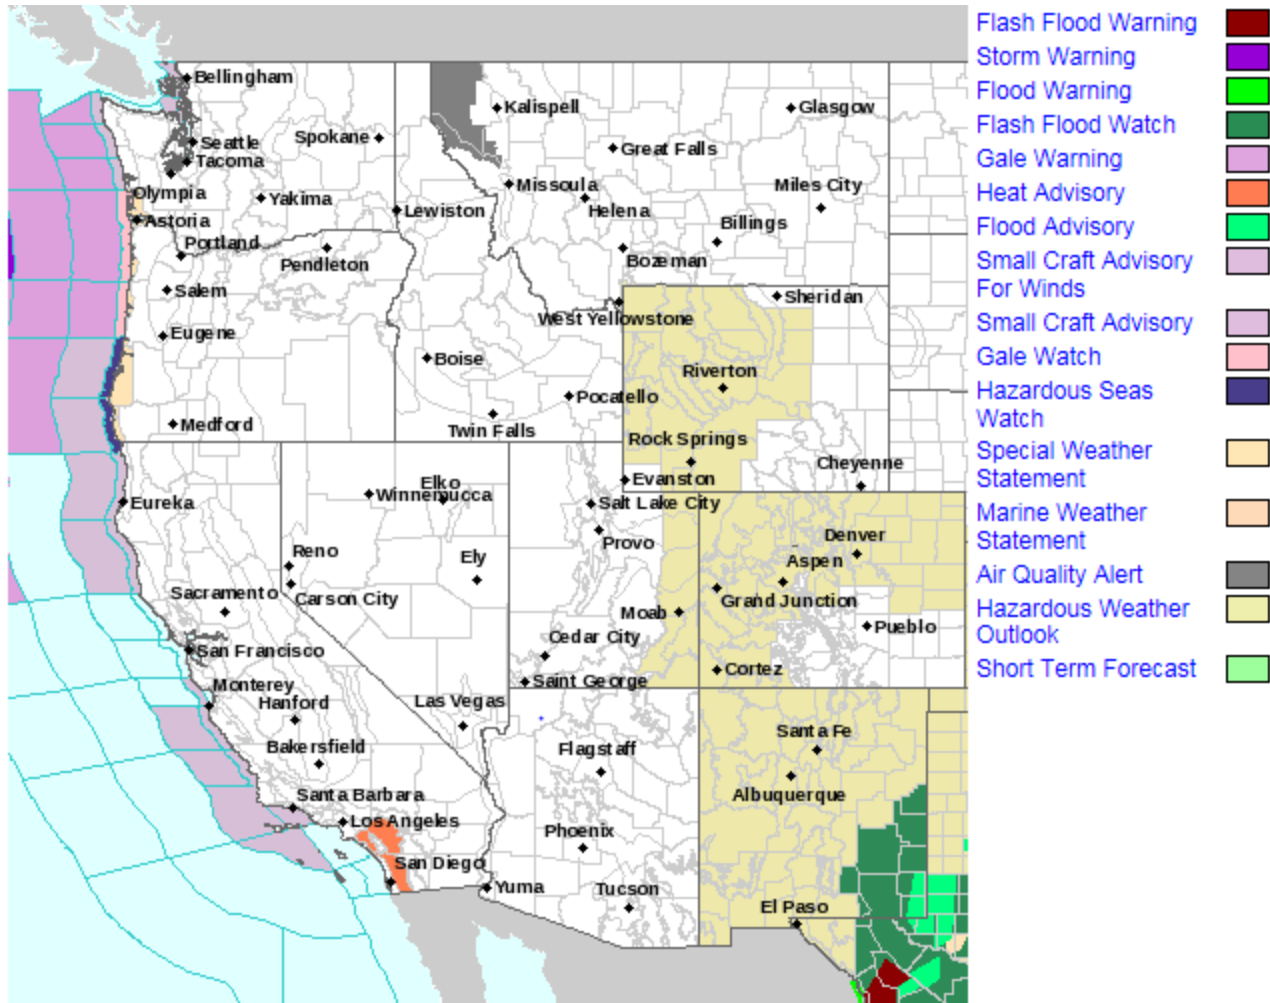

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Hot and dry through Saturday as high pressure builds aloft and offshore winds develop at the surface. Gradual cooling next week and a possible return of wet weather for mid or late next week.

Southeast California Weather:

A low pressure system will sink south into Mexico through the remainder of the week leaving the southwestern states under a drier and more tranquil weather regime. Above normal temperatures will return to the region today with a warming trend expected through at least early next week.
